Chapter 1

1. Why did Wiesel begin his novel with the account of Moshe the Beadle?

There is an element of foreshadowing with the introduction of Moshe – a glimpse of the impending doom but also foreshadowing of the ways in which the Jews would begin to turn on one another under harsh persecution of the Nazis.

The introduction of Moshe also helps to establish Eliezer's relationship with his faith and allows the reader to become conscious of the unfolding of this inner conflict and struggle.

2. Why did the Jews of Sighet choose to believe the London radio reports rather than Moshe?

Perhaps for some, it was better to be in denial that such events were occurring rather than to face the reality of the situation.

Others may have well have genuinely believed that the measures being taken against the Jews were temporary – for something of this nature to be happening in the 20th century clearly would seem absurd to people of the time, even to people today.

Also, one must have to take into consideration the power of propaganda. Reports were written and presented to rally the allied forces but also intimidate the enemy. These reports may not have necessarily been an accurate representation of the actual situation with regard to the war.

Lastly, Moshe, it seems, did not have much credibility. It seems many people disregarded his mutterings as those that belonged to a crazy man as Eliezer indicates. In contrast, even though Moshe's claims were from his very own eyes, the radio broadcasts could have appeared to have more credibility as they were from a respected and reputable news source of the time.

There are many potential reasons why the Jews of Sighet chose to believe the London radio reports over Moshe.

3. Why was it ironic that the leaders of the Jewish community were arrested during the celebration of Passover? (You will need to research the history of Passover if you are not familiar).
