

The Times

by Susan de Villiers

It is from numberless diverse acts of courage and belief that human history is shaped. Each time a man stands up for an ideal, or acts to improve the lot of others, or strikes out against injustice, he sends forth a tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centres of energy and daring, those ripples build a current that can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance.

Robert Kennedy in South Africa, 1966

On 16 June 1976, police opened fire on a peaceful demonstration by school children against the National Party edict that Afrikaans should become a compulsory language of instruction.

The first casualty was a 13-year old boy called Hector Petersen, who was on his way to the shop. A young photographer called Sam Nzima captured the image that travelled around the world and came to symbolise apartheid and the ruthless tactics of the party that was to govern South Africa for another 18 years.

South Africa would never be the same again.
